

The Verde River Remains Navigable Today!

Walt Carr [wcarr33@gmail.com]

Sent: Saturday, December 13, 2014 12:46 PM

To: Nav Streams

BY: .....

At the time of AZ's statehood, canoes were the only viable watercraft in which to navigate the Verde River... hopefully, there exist clear records of these early adventurers. Verde River Ranger

Dex Allen might be a good source...

Today, many private boaters enjoy single and multiday trips on the Verde River in inflatable and hard hulled watercraft.

My good friend Richard Lynch owns and operates Sedona Adventure Tours, guiding people down several stretches of the Verde River.

When water levels permit, myself and many friends enjoy multiday rafting and kayaking trips from Camp Verde to Horseshoe Lake.

i also enjoy taking friends on the Lower Verde River from below Bartlett Lake to Box Bar RAP.

We would float through to the confluence of the Verde and Salt Rivers, except right-of-way is not clear at this time... hopefully your process will clear this question once and for all.

Thank you for letting me submit email comments, as i will be out of town during your hearings. Many Blessings in establishing a clear resolution to this question!

Walt Carr 602-432-2993

1447 E Purdue Ave Phoenix AZ 85020

X050