Rafted down the Salt River on Memorial Day Weekend 2010. They are usually closed earlier but due to heavy snow & rain this year the rafts are still running. Our guide, Joe, was great. Very patient and calming. We did the duckies until lunch, which was a delicious veggie burger for me and my friends with fruit, chips & salsa and fresh veggies, then we switched to a raft with 6 people plus Joe. He was an amazing leader all the way. I have done duckies once before (Lower Animas - also with Mild to Wild) and my gal friends had never done it before. He got us through all the rapids and saved us when we flipped out of the duckies!

The whole day was a ton of fun and I will definitely do it again with Mild to Wild!

I have rafted with Mild to Wild many times from the 2 hour Lower Animas trip to overnight trips on the Upper Animas and Salt River and they never disappoint. From the get go, it is obvious that safety is a number one priority. This is a family run business and the owners are very involved in the day to day operations, making sure that every customer has a wonderful experience. The multitalented guides not only know how to row and narrate the history of the region, but they are excellent chefs on the overnight trips as well. I've lost count at this point of the number of trips I have taken with them but would not consider rafting with anyone else. Currently planning a Piedra River trip for next Spring with friends from the Midwest.

We went rafting down the Salt River in AZ. Our guide, Lao, was amazing! He knew the answers to all of our questions about the canyon and the surrounding area (including geology, plant life, history, etc...).

We had a great trip, and I'm probably going to go again in Colorado with these guys.

My partner and I took a trip down the Salt River this past weekend. It was our first time rafting and we had a good time. Our guide, Anna, was awesome and very knowledgeable about the surroundings. She was a badass. We also stayed overnight at the camp site. We were the only campers and we had a great time hanging out with all of the guides. Our meals were delicious and quite fancy for camping (i.e., steak, dutch oven lasagna, bagels and lox). We are looking forward to returning to the Salt River next season and checking out other trips, such as Durango, CO. The water was a little low so some of the rapids were a little bumpy or required some maneuvering.
