Fashion Quarterly presents its readers with a magnificent chromo-lithograph picture, illustrative of the season, and executed in the finest style The special merit claimed for this picture, by the publishers, is that it is an exact reproduction of actual costumes, and not a fancy picture whose original existed only in the brain of a Parisian artist. A full description of the costumes is given in the pages of the magazine.

Regides this the Operturby contains

Besides this, the Quarterly contains the usual instalment of good things for the ladies-illustrations and d scriptions of suits for ladies, miss and children, of hair goods, tourist's articles, summer sports and pasttimes and hundreds of other items in every department of household economy every case the prices are plainly stated, so that a lady going on a shopping expedition in any city in the Union, may know beforehand, not only what things she ought to buy to be in the fashion, but also what prices she should fairly be charged for

A feature of the Quarterly is its A feature of the Quarterly is its system of combination subscriptions, by which the Quarterly is actually sent free of charge.
