INGLORIOUS END OF A WEST POINTER'S EXISTENCE.

After Adopting the Tribal Customs of the Arizona Indians, Stoned to Death by Papagos Near Tueson.

Written for THE REPUBLICAN.

McLane was a bright boy and through some family influence obtained an appointment as cadet at the Military Academy at West Point. The Government had undertaken the expense of his board, clothing and education-the stars of a major-general were within the possibilities; but on account of some escapade he was expelled from the academy a visit to his family in Mesa. with the stigma of his deserts as a badge with the stigma of his deserts as a badge Superintendent A. DIAMOND JOE'S DEATH.

Did Not Die in a Tent, but Was Surrounded by Every Comfort.

Col. F. C. Hatch returned to the city Sonora, the most noted of which is the in the Bradshaw mountains, during which time he visited the famous Congress mine.

Yuma had gathered considerable personal property, consisting of horses, donkeys, arms and squaws, and, in an evil day for him, ventured beyond the Babaquivera range with his household of Apache squaws.

This was against all and every rule of the Papago tribe, as the Apache squaws might be spies, or they might escape other mining camp in the country better and convey information to the Apaches of the whereabouts of the Papago's fat cattle, and encourage a raid into the room in which Mr. Reynolds died might be spies, or they might escape other mining camp in the country better

"A physician, Dr. Vickers, is em-ployed regularly at the mine, and he was constant in his attendance on Mr. Reynolds, and besides him Superintendent Frank Murphy, a great favorite of Mr. Reynolds', Mr. Church and Mr. Bartlett administered to his every want. A messenger was dispatched for a lawyer, but not for a doctor, as none other than Dr. Vickers was needed.

"The entire camp is lighted with electric lights, and most of the story of Mr. Reynolds' death taken from the Chronicle must have originated in the brain of its Chicago correspondent.

SLANDERING THE LEGISLATURE. An Eloquent Member Who Did Not Tell

Which Side He Favored. From the Lordsburg Liberal.

The Arizona Legislature has adjourned. The Liberal commented unfavorably upon the New Mexico solons because they used interpreters. Colonel Egan tells the story of a speech of an Arizona legislator which seems to indicate interpreters were needed at Pho-nix.

When the Miles county bill was be fore the committee a certain honorable man, whose name had escaped the Colonel's memory, who had been elected pledged against any county division, ap-peared before the committee and made a long and eloquent speech about Miles county. After he had completed his adiress and resumed his seat the chairman of the committee turned to him and said: "My dear sir, your speecch was a very fine one and very convincing. but as a matter of curiosity I would like to know if it was in favor of or against the The legislator turned his head as he slid out of the door and ejaculated "For it, of course."

FLOODS IN YAVAPAL

An Undaunted Rancher Writes of the General Destruction.

The following is an excerpt from a letter recently received by Statistical Agent Poston from a cheerful farmer at Charmingdale, Yavapai county: "A few words concerning the changed condition of the agricultural outlook in my vicinity in consequence of the un-precedented floods of February 16, 18 and 22 may not be out of place. "Every farm on our Walnut creek was more or less damaged and some entirely ruined. Some have dropped the plow and hoe and will not even take advantage of what they have left, will not repair their ditches or farms. The damage done to my place was more than $500. Several acres of good land was broken from the banks and my stone cellar and my dwelling came near going into the raging torrent, but the water commenced receding just in time so that by menced receding just in time, so that by the unusual energy of my hired man and myself hauling over 100 tons of rock and riprapping the bank, all is now safe and in better condition than before. In one week more I will have the water in my

The Verde river settlements, consisting of the Upper Verde, Middle Verde and Lower Verde, the aggregate of which is about 50 per cent of the producing portion of our county, have sustained the loss of all their ditches and much valuable land and improvements. "For my part I intend to utilize the great sand bar now covering a large part of my meadow land to the depth of at least two feet, by planting the entire area in melons.
